It is expected that not only the members will participate, but that many members of the California State Horsemen's Association will take part in it. It proposed to accompany the riders with a chuck wagon. Members would bring only their horses and bedding rolls. The ride will be taken through some of the most scenic of Nevada County's wilds.

DAVIS WRITES ON LETTERS TO ITALY

The Nugget
Dear Editor:

Under the caption "Italians Get thousands of U. S. Letters" the A. P. Dispatch dated April 4, says, "Italian-Americans opposed to Communism are bombarding Italy with letters and cables urging relatives and friends to vote against the Communists in the April 18 election."

The national secretary of the order of the Sons of Italy has stated that 120,000 fraternity members have already sent 2 million anti-Communist letters to Italy. Approximately 100 Italian language publications in more than 45 U. S. cities have joined in this crusade.

The Columbus Civic Club, an Italian-American group in San Francisco, has launched a one-week "punch" campaign for 100,000 airmail letters to Italy as a climax of a six-month-old campaign.

Nevada County has, and always has had a considerable population of Americans of Italian descent. The Great Register of the County as long ago as 1865 lists 16 men, most of them in Nevada City or Grass Valley, who Claimed Italy as their native country.

It is not too late for air mail letters to reach Italy before election.

Sincerely yours,
H. P. Davis

NOVAK, COLVIN DEPT. STORE OPENED MON.

NEVADA CITY: Bill Novak and Buzz Colvin received the congratulations of many friends yesterday on the opening of their new department store, Novak & Colvin, at 127 Broad Street, half a block above the Plaza.

The spic and span shop was crowded with the floral tributes of wishers-well. Undaunted by scattered showers, hail and an occasional heavy downpour, throngs of shoppers crowded the establishment to make selections from choice lines of dry goods, ready-to-wear, shoes, yardage, accessories, notions, work clothes, and all the other departments of a complete store.

The owner-managers of the business are well-known to the people of the county. Novak has for many years been employed by J. C. Penny Co.'s Grass Valley establishment, while Colvin was manager of Bert's Dry Goods Store, prominent Mill Street emporium.

Cleveland of the Gaston Mine, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Larsen of Seattle, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Atta of Rochester, New York, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Winkley of Fortine, Montana, Ray F. Jolliffe of Rolla, North Dakota, C. J. Laughlin of Los Angeles, and Mary Scott of Arkansas City, Kansas.

The California Highway Patrol reports that three types of drivers cause most of our traffic accidents; the spectacular "show off" with his foolish and unsafe acts; the discourteous driver who is selfish and reckless, disregarding the rights of others; and the fast stepping "speed maniac" who is always in a rush, too often headed for the cemetery.

SUPERVISORS CONSIDER DEBATE ON GIRL SCOUT CAMP FUNDS

NEVADA CITY: The Nevada County Board of Supervisors have named Stanley Mitchell of Grass Valley to be manager of the Veterans Memorial Building at $250 a month. Mitchell is deputy county coroner.

It was a three to two vote. Merle Morrison of Nevada City, former secretary of the Selective Service Board, received two votes.

The meeting of the supervisors was partly occupied by a controversy between the Nevada County Girl Scout Councillors and the Grass Valley councillors

Last year the board granted the Nevada County Girl Scouts $250 with which repairs were to be made to the buildings at Scott's Flat Dam formerly used by the Civilian Conservation Corps, but now forming the nucleus of a Girl Scout camp. This money has been spent and another grant of $250 was in the offing, in fact it has been promised.

The Grass Valley Girls Scout Council, however, appeared before the board yesterday and wanted the same amount donated them for the building of Girls Scout Camp at Lake Rucker, higher in the mountains. They opposed the use of the name, Nevada County Girl Scouts, by the Nevada City councillors.

The Nevada City Councillors, however, refused to relinquish the name, but stated no objection to sharing the last $250, not yet received, with the Grass Valley Council. The Nevada City group stated that all Girl Scouts would be welcome to the use of the camp ground at Scott's Flat Dam.

District Attorney Vernon Stoll stated he would have to look into the matter to see whether the appropriation was legally proper for the board to make.

The board decided to take no action at present.

GARRISON NAMES N. S. G. W. SCOUT TROOP COMMITTEE

NEVADA CITY: Fred C. Garrison, president of Hydraulic Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, has named a committee to take charge of Boy Scout Troop 6, sponsored by the parlor.

Permission, with some restrictions, was granted the Nevada County Historical Society, to borrow items from the joint historical museum of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West for exhibition in the society's museum in the No. 1 firehouse on Main Street, during the summer.

A little more than half of the national shipments of fresh oranges and plums originate in California.

SUPERVISORS PROTEST BEALE BOMBING

NEVADA CITY: The Nevada County Board of Supervisors has adopted a resolution protesting the use of Camp Beale for aerial bombing target, and requesting the Federal Government to return the tract to its surplus property category.

The board calls attention to the fact that there are other lands of far less agricultural value suitable for bombing targets and that the use of the land for this purpose will cause hardship.

A copy of the resolution is directed to be sent to the federal officials concerned and to the California delegation in Congress.

Rocks which have folded into tremendous arches thousands of feet high and equally broad are called anticlines.

REYNOLDS ENTERS STATE ASSEMBLY ELECTION CONTEST

TRUCKEE: B. W. (Sarge) Reynolds, Truckee businessman and civic leader, this week announced his candidacy for state assemblyman from the sixth district.

Reynolds is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reynolds, El Dorado County pioneers, and has spent his entire life in the district. Educated in Placerville schools, Reynolds spent 18 years with the California Highway Patrol, retiring with the rank of sergeant to enter the cafe business at Truckee. He was largely responsible for securing enlarged and more efficient highway patrol facilities for the Tahoe area.

A member of the Elks and an officer of the Truckee Lions Club, he served for two terms as president of the Truckee chamber of commerce. He was recently appointed as a director of the Truckee Public Utility District to serve out an unexpired three-year term.

Beside his interests in Truckee, Reynolds has active ranching interests in El Dorado County and is conversant with the problems of the agricultural interests of the district. His years on the highway patrol throughout the Sierra and Mother Lode impressed him with the need for better highways in the area both for industrial and recreational purposes.

Reynolds is vitally and personally interested in development of recreational facilities, both summer and winter, in the district. To further this development, he believes conservation of our fish and game and forest resources should be of paramount consideration.

"Since this is such an extensive district, it is obviously impossible to contact every voter personally," Reynolds says. "However, if any voter in the district wants to know my stand on a particular question, just drop me a line. If I know what I'm talking about, I'll answer it. If I don't know what I'm talking about, I frankly say so and may ask for enlightenment from you. You are entitled to know where I stand and I want to know as much of the problems of the district as I can."

Mrs. Reynolds, the former Rosita Farrell of Auburn, is associated with her husband in business and they are the parents of four daughters.

Reynolds is filing on both the Republican and Democratic tickets and is basing his campaign on his wide personal knowledge of the district and its many problems.

THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

We had a marriage up at Scott's ranch last week and Marie and I went to it by invitation. Lou Hanchett, the boss miner on the ridge, has been courting a pretty girl at Selby Flat They were friends of the Scotts, and the wedding was held at their place. About twenty of the boys from Selby Flat were there, as well as all of the miners from Rock Creek. Lou provided a big blowout and ended up with a dance, which we kept up until midnight and then scattered. Hanchett is one of the best fellows in the country, but the boys are not exactly pleased with his capturing the belle of the county and taking her away from the Flat.

(NOTE.—Hanchett and wife settled at the camp afterward known as Moore's Flat, where he discovered and opened one of the richest mines in the State. A girl baby was born to them in 1853, who passed her girlhood in that pretty mountain town. She married George Crocker, son of Charles Crocker, one of the original projectors and builders of the Central Pacific Railroad and died in Paris in 1918.

CHAPTER XXII

APRIL 18, 1852.—It's a queer life we are leading, but it could not be pleasanter. I have given her my horse to ride and Pard lets me use his animal. Mine is the gentler one and I would not trust Marie on a bucking horse. Pard says that in the present state of affairs a jackass will do him. The landlady of the Hotel de Paris and Marie are countrywomen, and are great friends, which makes it very pleasant, as she has a companion to live with and it stops talk. Marie gets her breakfast at the hotel and then rides out to the cabin. Then we sit around in the shade until dinner time. Marie calls it dejeuner a la fourchette, and says dinner time doesn't come until six o'clock. We've hunted the town for dainty things to eat and have a regular picnic cooking our meals It's astonishing to

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder how mecurial we human creatures are;
One day we stand upon the heights of joy and ecstacy,
The next, we add our peevish plaints
To life's perplexity.

I Wonder to what an extent the observances of Easter caught the momentary attention of our minds and to what an extent they impressed the heart and conscience. Truly, we are a mecurial people, but no doubt the celebration of certain memorable days keeps us from loosing the light which shines from the star of destiny and possibly something seen or heard may lead us to long for the coming of spring to a cold and wintry world.

In America we have numerous days which, if celebrated in the right spirit, might impress useful lessons of faith, courage and hope upon us, so indelibly, that our future days might prove of greater worth to ourselves and those about us. In reviewing the lives and characters of our own national heroes, we find noble examples of self sacrifice and devotion to duty and all down through the ages, there will be found no dearth of inspiring memories which are as beacon lights upon the forward way.

At the present time, the world lacks leadership; but we hope that the coming days, even though clouded by political strife, may develop the proper leadership and that we who help in their selection may have the good sense to stand with them and uphold the principals upon which our nation is established. We hope that from the welter of confusion, distrust and fear which now prevails in a distraught world, leaders may arise in this and other lands and that they may be men of vision, courage and devotion, together with the ability needed for the solution of the grave problems with which they are surrounded. It is indeed time to pray, "God give us men."

I Wonder why so many people of seeming importance are busily engaged in fomenting fear and distrust in the minds of their followers. There are so many frightened people in our land today and every day there are more scare headlines in the newspapers and we get another attack of the jitters. We wish the powers that be, would explain foreign plans and domestic issues so that we, the frightened ones, might take courage and go marching on.

Shakespeare once wrote, "in the night imagining some fear, how easy is a bush supposed a bear." Too true, I remember that years ago I had an experience which proves Mr. Shakespeare's assertion. Yes, I thought a bush was something exciting and was properly humiliated when I discovered its harmlessness.

Just now, Remembering that circumstances of past years, I'm wishing that a little flock of whales would not swim within sight of our mainland

Why can't submarines of unknown origin, be located off the Atlantic coast? I think because the sightseers knew that if frightened, the people of eastern cities and towns would take flight to the western coast and there would be a dangerous shifting of population. He can scare us Californians till we fancy we are seeing submarines in every river and stream, but we won't run, we'll stay here and be scared rather than fly for safety to the east.

"Pooh, pooh," said the small boy who heard fearsome noises as he was walking home through the woods one dark night, "pooh, pooh, that's nothing but noise. "Let's follow his example, Let's say,

Not every spouting whale and floating tub
Pooh, pooh, in our Pacific sea,
Can rightfully be called a sub.

WEATHER POSTPONES SCOTT'S FLAT DAM DEDICATION

GRASS VALLEY: The Nevada Irrigation District directors have postponed the dedication of Scott's Flat Dam from April 11th to June 13th.

A picnic luncheon will be served. The district will provide the coffee. Dedicatory exercises will begin at 2:30 P. M. The management now announces that the water shortage for the district's area will not be critical this year, due to the March and April storms.

see how neat we have got to be, beds made up, dishes washed, cabin tidied up as clean as we can make it, and we have even swept the dooryard. Marie rubs her finger over the plates and shows us the grease on them and says: "We have not used of ze soap plenty enough" and "ze dish cloths, they are so dirty." Pard calls her a little tyrant, but he is as pleased as a boy, and Jack has gone daffy. Some of the afternoons when it is not too hot we ride together over the hills, but generally sit around under the pine trees chatting and planning the future. Pard is set on my going into some kind of business in San Francisco. First of all, though, we will visit the old folks, although not to settle down there Marie says: " Perhaps the fazzer and ze muzzer zey will not like it t'at I take zeir boy, but I t'ink I will make zem love me," and Pard says she is a pretty witch whom nobody could help liking Then she wants me to visit Paris and meet her mother and sisters and then, "if San Francisco," shrugging her shoulders, "well, what ze husband he desire, ze good wife she should do the same." Pard roars at this and says good doctrine before marriage, but wait until afterwards.

We rubbed pretty close to a nasty adventure Thursday. Reelfoot Williams' gang has been raiding the trails and roads for the past month. Posses have been raised to chase and capture them, and there was a fight two weeks ago between the robbers and a Marysville posse down below Rose's Bar. A deputy sheriff and one of his men were killed, but the thieves got off scot free. We have heard of them around Nevada County, and they held up a stage near Illinoistown a couple of weeks ago. We had just finished dinner when Jack growled and pard went to the door to find out what the trouble was. He saw a lot of men coming up the trail about fifty yards away, and it popped into

NOTE.—It will be seen that Jackson's diary has degenerated or risen, as the reader is pleased to view it, into a love romance, pure and simple, and the prosaic facts of his existence do not get the same detail as before, but the situation is idyllic. That this hard-headed Yankee and vivacious Frenchwoman should drift together from opposite ends of the earth and form a mutual attachment that ignored family ties, opposing religions and contrary views from almost any standpoint, braving the sneers and criticisms of the world, each with an abiding faith in the other's affection, constitutes a romantic episode, and, I was about to add, a strange one. I qualify this, however, for I can recall dozens of instances that were quite as unreasonable from a commonplace standpoint. Love has no reasons, no excuses, and the sexual instinct will not be denied.)

O'DONNELL ADVOCATES FREE MARKET FOR GOLD IN RECENT ADDRESS

Editor's note: The accompanying article is an address by Neil O'Donnell, Executive Vice-President, Idaho Maryland Mines Corp., Grass Valley Cal., delivered before the Denver mining convention.

It was also presented to the California State-Wide Mining Committee, meeting in Sacramento, March 4, and is the basis on which that committee planned its request to Congress for a world free gold market bill.

By NEIL O'DONNELL, Chairman State Wide Mining Committee

A year ago in an article on gold for the American Mining Congress Journal, I stated that the gold mining industry in the United States and elsewhere was in the doldrums. The situation in 1948 is little changed from January, 1946.

Cause of the Problem

What is the cause of the difficulty? There are two causes. One is the scarcity of skilled labor and the other is the mounting cost of mining. The scarcity of labor can be traced to many things, but the real cause is the war and the world-wide unrest created by the war. The increase in costs have been attributed to many things, including the war. No doubt the war had an effect on prices, but an effort to pull the nation up by its bootstraps through "controlled" inflation has had an even greater effect.

Solutions of the Problem

There will be no drop in prices soon in an economy that is undergoing "controlled" inflation.

It is my belief that prices will not go back to the 1939-40 level again. The reason is that our obligations in the form of veterans administration costs, interest on our enormous debt, assumption of the police duties of Britian and maintenance of another armed truce will call for such extensive taxation that costs of both labor and supplies will not go back to pre-war levels, even though we materially reduce our budget requirements.

The labor scarcity can only be cured by training a new generation of miners. The training of a new generation of miners will require from 2 to 4 years and will be an expensive item, indeed. This is a hidden cost, but a very real one.

Increase in Price

The only solution that seems to be practical in the view of most operators and students of the problem is an increase in the price to be paid the gold miners. From the standpoint of the miner, gold is a commodity like copper, cotton, wheat or lumber. His costs of production have gone up as have the costs of the manufacturers of most any commodity you can name. He should be entitled to an increase in the selling price of his commodity, he reasons, like any other manufacturers. His point is well taken; but because gold is the backbone of the world's monetary system, he finds that an entirely different set of conditions control gold production than controlled production of other commodities.

There has been an organized resistance to an increase in the price of gold by our Treasury Department. What has been the basis of this resistance?

The Treasury Department has said an increase in the price in the United States would be inflationary. A similar question directed to a responsible officer of the International Monetary Fund elicited the same answer, arrived at from slightly different approaches. We have had the further statement that too many men and supplies are being diverted from the production of consumer goods by gold mining. While these reasons may be good reasons, I feel that they are not the real reasons that our Treasury Department follows the program it does follow relative to gold.

Treasury Program

The Treasury program has been to maintain an artificially low price for gold, in terms of dollars. Mr. Bratler, in an article in the Commercial and Financial Chronicle had this to say recently relative to that matter.

"Although in most of the world, effort to keep gold on a dollar standard and thereby keep the left us. Then we learned she was a home missionary, that she had gone into dangerous places, rescuing girls from dives and brothels sometimes at the risk of losing her life.

Our next teacher, Neil McNeil Kennedy, was a Canadian by birth. He was also well educated in English, but also a French Latin and Greek scholar, an indefatigable worker and a wonderful help to us older scholars, as he gave lessons in the three languages gratis. After school each night he taught a large class in French, a smaller class in Latin, and a class of two young ladies in Greek. The writer studied French and Latin, but did not attempt the study of the Greek Language.

The curriculum of the early school was very different from that of later times. School was then opened in the morning with the teacher reading a few verses from the Bible, and the recitation of the Lord's Prayer, by the teacher and scholars. A song to open the school in the afternoon. This was continued for the first few years, at least for the first five or six, while we had the lady teachers.

All classes were required to stand with hands clasped behind our backs with the exception of the reading classes of course, and the higher arithmetic classes. All our lessons were oral, no written work except at examinations. Rules were very strict. No sitting stooped over books when studying, lest we get a slap on the back with the teacher's ruler. Gymnasium exercises, (calisthenics) once a day. As the rules were strict, good order was maintained, as the rod and ruler was ever handy. Punishment was not forbidden, and usually the teacher was upheld by the parents and school board. For poor recitations, often the punishment was standing on the floor for a given length of time, with book in hands to study the unlearned lesson. Sometimes made to stay after school to study. No eating in school of fruit and candy, neither chewing of gum. These rules were well maintained, few daring to break the rules.

An entertainment presented at the Nevada Theatre by the Native Daughters of Laurel Parlor for the benefit of the G. A. R. and the N. S. G. W. proved more of a social and financial success than was expected. Following an overture by Goyne's orchestra Miss Mabel Hughes, one of Nevada County's sweetest voiced and most popular vocalists sang "Star of My Heart". She was followed on the program by the playing of Von Veler's Polonaise for the piano by Mrs. L. S. Calkins and Miss Edith Goyne. Ralph Gaylord whistled "Calvary" accompanied by Miss Minnie Brand. The second half of the program consisted of a three-act society comedy "Between the Acts". Principal roles were those of Richard Comfort and his wife Edith, played by Leonard DeVilbiss, a former professional actor, and Miss Mae Martin. Veterans' News

More than 120,000 veterans in the Veterans Administration Branch 12 area (California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii) have received hospital treatment from VA since January, 1946.

During the same period the VA has increased the bed capacity in the eleven VA hospitals in the area from 6,542 to 9,653 beds, or more than 47 percent.

In addition, VA has constantly maintained more than 2,000 contract beds in Army, Navy or private hospitals for the treatment of veteran-patients.

In order to care for the increasing load of veteran-patients, VA is carrying out a reconstruction program. A 166-bed addition to the Reno Center was opened last year.

Construction was started last year on a 250-bed hospital at Fresno and the site has been selected for a 1,000-bed neuropsychiatric hospital at Los Angeles. VA is in the process of selecting a site for a 1,000-bed neuro-psychiatric hospital in the San Francisco area. Contracts for additions to the Livermore and San Fernando tuberculosis hospitals have been let and plans are being completed for new hospitals at Phoenix and San Diego.

FREE MARKET FOR GOLD

a whole generation is growing up without ever touching or seeing gold coin, unless in a museum, gold is still the basic element in this country's monetary and credit structure; and from the standpoint of convertibility for all practical purposes the dollar is on the gold standard, although it would be closer to the truth to say that gold is on the dollar standard."

That is a statement of fact. The Treasury has maintained an world's currencies on a dollar standard. The happenings of the last few weeks demonstrate the fallacy of such thinking.

The result of the Treasury's program has been many fold—most of it bad. Because of the effort to keep currencies at an artificially high rate, most of the countries were fearful of the value of the currencies of their neighbors As a result, they would not accept them. They would accept only dollars or gold. Gold was scarce to start with because we have approximately two-thirds of the world's supply. Dollars alone are insufficient in number to support the world's trade. The dollars were sent to us in ever-increasing quantities until the rest of the world's business began to stagnate for lack of a monetary medium. The world is faced with either of two choices: (1), to continue until we had a world-wide collapse, or, (2), to establish a free market for gold which would determine daily the actual value of every currency and would enable the world's traders to resume their business.

1—I, therefore, propose the establishment of a free market for newly mined gold in the United States at once.

2—I further propose, as Mr. Brownell has recently, the restrictions upon American citizens owning gold.

3—With Mr. Brownell, I also propose that the articles of the gold act remain the same, including the purchase of all gold offered the Treasury at $35.00 per ounce.

Arguments for the Proposals

The arguments for the proposals taken in order are:

Establishment of a free market for newly mined gold in the United States would be a market for all newly mined gold, whether of American origin or not. Purchasers would have the right to export to whatever country freely, although after securing an export permit from the Treasury. This would have a four-fold result. Immediately the value of every currency wiould be accurately determined. What is more, a day-to-day check would be kept on the value of every currency. Secondly, it would make available to the gold producer the premium market now closed to him by a set of silly restrictions. Thirdly, the establishment of convertability factors to gold for currency would re-open the arteries of trade, the first essential to establishment of world peace. Fourth, it would stop the inflow of gold to the United States and start a better distribution throughou the world.

Removal of the restrictions on holding gold by American citizens:

The holding of gold by American citizens is in itself of no greater importance than the holding of a quantity of copper or silver by a citizen. However, gold is not a commodity directly comparable to copper or silver because it is the backbone of our currency system and the currency system of the world.

I quote Mr. Walter E. Spahr in his article in the December 1, 1947 issue of Monetary Notes, published by the Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy. He says:

"A gold coin standard provides the people with direct control of the government's use and abuse of the public purse."

Restoration to the people of the right to hold gold returns to them control over the public purse. It helps to do another thing—it helps to re-establish that the government is the servant of the people—rather than the reverse.

You will note that I have not recommended the issuance of gold coin, but only that American citizens may own gold .Within a year a free market would determine the value of each currency, including the dollar. When a free market has established the value of the dollar, I would propose the issuance of gold coin upon the basis of the price then determined.

The amount of gold to be issued would be ten billion dollars, at the rate of two billions a year. The issuance of this amount would remove 10 of the 18 billion dollars increase in paper circulation since 1941.

Maintenance of a minimum fixed price of $35.00 per ounce would, frankly, stabilize a minimum price for gold held by whatever group and would guarantee producers that minimum. It would do more than that — it would guarantee the value or purchasing power of the 16 billion dollars held outside the United States.—California Mining Journal.

PROPER USE OF BRAKES

The best brakes in perfect adjustment sometimes can be dangerous if used inproperly. Brakes never should be applied any harder than necessary to make the required stop. Hazards should be noted while they are far ahead and decisions made promptly. If a stop seems necessary, act immediately.. If it can possible be avoided, never jam the brakes down hard and hold them there.

It is always best to stop the car with a series of impulses in diminishing cadence. Particularly on wet or slippery roads the brakes should not be suddenly applied unless quite necessary. And if the car goes into a spin, it is the accelerator, not the brakes, that will straighten it out. Never brake in the middle of a turn. Brake before reaching the turn and then accelerate slightly to round it. This will prevent the car from sliding into the curbstone or gutter.

LOOKING AHEAD

BY GEORGE S. BENSON

President—Harding College, Searcy, Arkansas

You Pay for It

Other day that classic journal of ours, the Arkansas Gazette, commented: "The government has it all figured out what people do with every penny of their money. Now, if only the people could figure out what the government does with it." That is a real poser! To be sure, government has to spend a lot of money. We are a big nation. Moreover, we find it necessary to take on obligations in many foreign lands.

But whether the government (specifically the federal government, where they throw around big sums) spends no more than is needful is important to everyone. Government is not a luxury; it is a necessity. Yet, to read the budget figures you would think all operations were on a luxury basis.

Government Spends

That government is expensive was proved again by John T. Flynn, who showed in Reader's Digest that TVA, a government project, forgot to include certain items in its bookkeeping. Instead of the indicated profit, there was a real deficit of $130,000,000 to June 30, 1944. Flynn shows there was an actual loss in sales of power to that date of $15,000,000. This demonstrates that efficiency is a quality unknown to government operations.

Here's a prophecy. Wait until the budget is presented to this Congress, then watch the departments and bureaus fight any reductions. Increase the appropriation and swell the payroll — but shrink the swollen department? Never.

Way to Depression.

This kind of selfishness means meager tax savings. It permits little tax reduction for folks who so much need relief. The more we tax and the more we spend for government, the nearer we get to depression.

Taxes of all kinds are too heavy these days. Corporation taxes are burdensome. Income taxes on all levels are too high. The individual income taxes cut down the rewards of the wage earner, keeping him from saving and investing. Instead, his tax payment is earmarked: "government expense." Some people oppose tax reductions for corporations and individuals, without realizing that continued heavy taxes will undermine our economic system and their own standard of living.

Decisions Lie Ahead

Obviously, one of the quickest ways to halt wasteful and unprofitable bureaucracy is to stop feeding fuel to its fires. Government, without a plentiful supply of tax money, could hardly be wasteful government. Congress has the power to say what the government shall spend and what amount it shall collect in taxes. It is up to us to see that our Congress keeps a proper rein on collections and expenditures.

Unwise spending and taxing could take this nation into the bankruptcy of communism. It could do it more quickly than anything else. Indeed, the power to tax is the power to destroy. We must see to it that America keeps an efficient and well-managed government, not a wasteful bureaucracy. That will be a powerful factor in deciding, in the coming months, whether America will remain prosperous and economically stable.

Man uses thought, an animal uses caution. The California Highway Patrol has learned when a driver uses both he has a combination hard to beat.

NEW BASEBALL DIAMONDS BUILT AT WATT PARK

GRASS VALLEY: Work is in progress on two new baseball diamonds on the Nevada County Fair Grounds in Watt Park.

County Supervisor Frank Rowe, Loyle Freeman of the 17th Agricultural District, and a group of high school boys are cooperating. They hope to have the fields ready in a few days.

Eighty high school boys have turned out this year for baseball. There are 50 boys trying for places in the B team and 30 for the A team. These teams previously have done their practicing on the Memorial Park grounds and on the present diamond in Watt Park. Both were unsatisfactory. This was due partly to the fact that there were too many teams using the fields for practice. The new diamonds are expected to relieve the situation.

FLAG DAY PLANS

GRASS VALLEY: Master Sergeant Allen E. Butler in charge of the army recruiting office here announced yesterday that next Tuesday in observance of Army Day he will hold open house.

"To help us honor America's soldiers," said Butler, "I ask that every business establishment and school in Grass Valley display the flag on Army Day. Veterans can participate by wearing their discharge buttons on that day. "The recruiting office is in the Public Library on Mill Street and the doors will be open from 9 A. M. until 5 P. M.

Professor Wins Prize With 'Mixed Technique'

Berkeley: Professor Worth Ryder of the department of art on the Berkeley campus of the University of California has been awarded the Art Association Donor Prize for Painting at the San Francisco Art Association's 67th annual exhibition of painting and sculpture.

The Ryder canvas, entitled "Sierra Nevada," was done in "mixed technique," a method of oil glazings over tempera stemming from the early Renaissance. The secret of "mixed technique" with its factors of luminosity and permanence was rediscovered in recent times and its adaptability to modern painting is being investigated by several members of the art faculty on the University's Berkeley campus.

San Francisco had a population of 820 persons when California was ceded to the United States in 1848.
